c. *Proud of herself, Robin is less __.

What do we know about the dependency so far?

Summary of results

- Extraction appears to have unbounded fetch;
- it applies to all major category types;
- it appears to be largely independent of properties of distinct lexical classes;
- it relates a higher position to a lower position that is unrestricted with respect to \bar{X} relations
- case, person and number are shared between the extracted constituent and the gap site;
- only maximal projections can be extracted.

Wh-UDCs

Wh-questions

- (20) a. What did you see?
b. What did Leslie think you saw?
c. What is Robin sure that Leslie thinks you saw?
d. What did Dana insist that Robin sure that Leslie thinks you saw?
- (21) a. You will read what
b. What will you read?
- (22) a. You will read which book

Islandhood parallelisms

Ross-era island conditions:

Complex NP Constraint Nothing can be extracted out of an NP where the gap site is under S in the configuration

- (46) You accepted Robin's offer to insult who?/*Who did you accept Robin's offer to insult

- (48) Sentential Subject Constraint Nothing may be extracted from a clausal subject.

- (50) a. That Robin spied for who disturbed you greatly?
 b. *I wonder who that Robin spied for __disturbed you greatly.

Extraction from a subject is impossible?

- (51) a. Only the hoods of these cars were damaged in the explosion.
b. These are the cars of which only the hoods— were damaged in the explosion.
c. Of which cars were only the hoods damaged in the explosion?
- (52) a. The key to this lock has been lost.
b. This is the lock to which the key has been lost.
c. To which locks have the keys been lost?
d. Has the key to this lock been lost?
e. I expect to the key to this lock to be lost.
- (53) a. I believe that Robin taking the key to that lock without asking is very suspicious.
b. *To which lock do you believe that Robin taking the key — without asking is very suspicious?

The Coordinate Structure Constraint

- (54) a. I like raspberries and papayas in fruit salad.
b. *What do you like raspberries and — in fruit salad?
c. *What do you like — and papayas in fruit salad?
- (55) a. I play cards with the gang and go to night classes on alternate Thursdays.

- (56) a. Florence is the city that I went to last year and photographed a lot of churches in.
b. To whom have you presented your plans or shown your prospectus?
c. Visit Paris, Robin definitely will this summer and I really should sometime next year.

Subjacency

• No single movement operation may related positions separated by more than one bounding node, where for English the bounding nodes are NP, S and \bar{S} .

- (57) a. You met the guy who sold which car to Robin?
b. *Which car did you meet the guy who sold __to Robin?

50

- a. That Robin spied for who disturbed you greatly?

b. *I wonder who that Robin spied for __disturbed you greatly.

- (58) a. You were wondering who to talk to how?
b. *How were you wondering who to talk to __?

Relative clauses

- (59) a. *That's the car which I met the guy who sold __to Robin.
b. *The group which that Robin spied for __disturbed you greatly has been banished.
c. *That's the place where I wonder what they found __. [narrow-scope reading]

Clefts

- (60) a. *It was that car which I met the guy who sold __to Robin.
b. *It was that group which that Robin spied for __disturbed me greatly.
c. *It was there that I wonder what they found __. [narrow-scope reading]

Pseudoclefts

- (61) a. *What I met the guy who sold __to Robin was that car.
b. *What that Robin spied for __disturbed me greatly was that group.
c. *Where I wonder what they found __was behind the wall.

Topicalization

- (62) a. *That car, I met the guy who sold __to Robin.
b. That* group, that Robin spied for __disturbed me greatly.
c. ??There, I wonder what they found.

Missing objects

- (63) a. It would be hard for us to choose a car to buy from this guy.
b. *Which guy would be hard for you to choose a car to buy from __.

Icelandic

- (84) það var dansað í gær.
 there was danced yesterday
 ‘People danced yesterday.’
- (85) það drekka margir vín á Íslandi
 there drink many wine in Iceland
 ‘Many people drink wine in Iceland.’

það can only occur if nothing else precedes the tensed part of the verb, and in that case it is obligatory both in main and in embedded clauses... the result of það insertion in Icelandic is that in declarative main clauses and embedded clauses the tensed part of the verb is always in second position... There is however one exception to this generalization...; namely, in binding domains það must be omitted. The verb can then come first under the S-node in these domains if the subject is indefinite or if the sentence contains an impersonal passive.

- (86) a. Hann spurði, hvað drekki margt fólk á Íslandi.
 he asked what drink many people in Iceland
 ‘He asked what many people drink in Iceland.’
 b. *Hann spurði, hvað það drekki margt fólk á Íslandi.

Monostratal feature-logical grammar

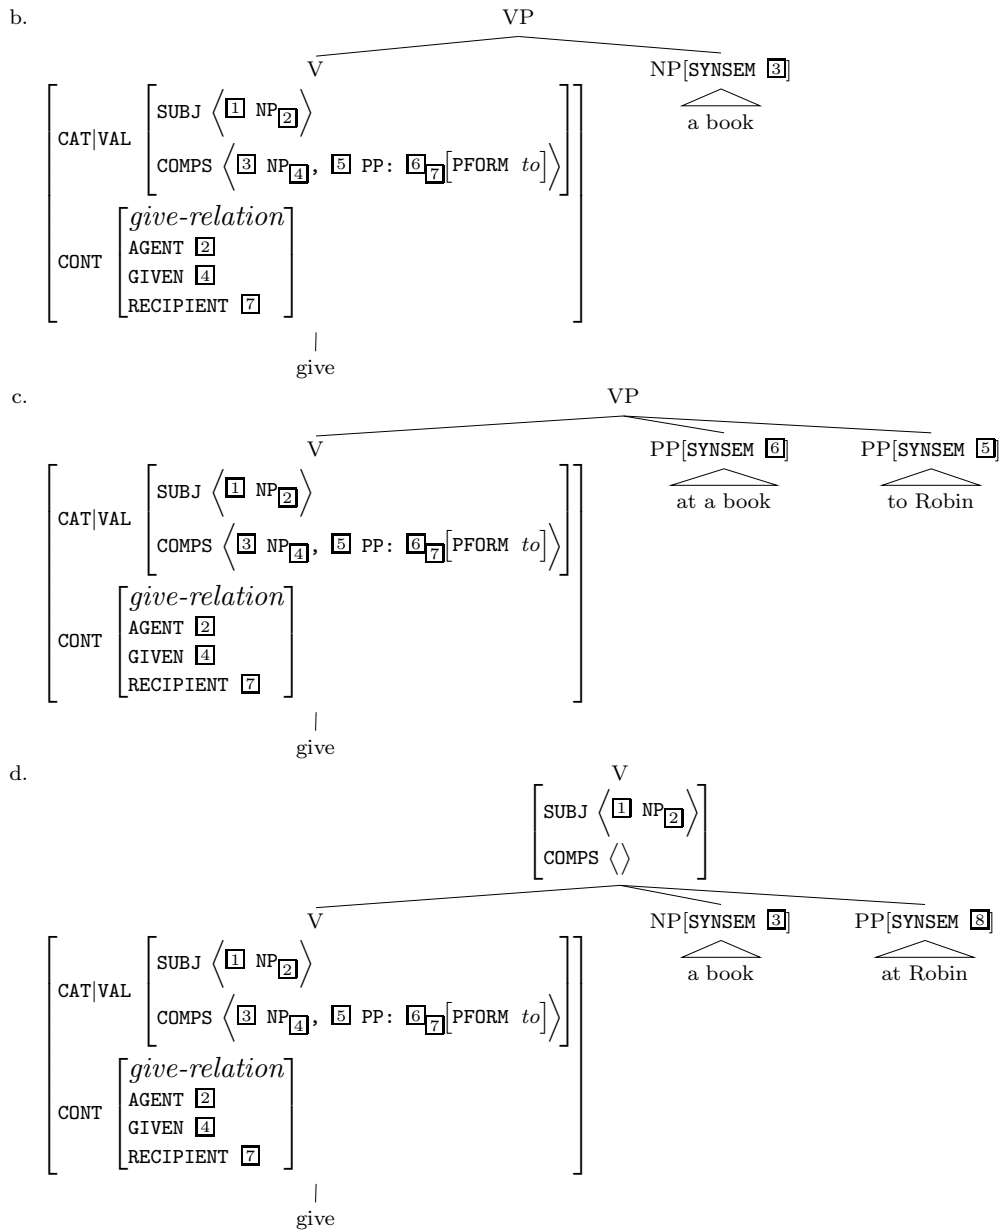

(104)

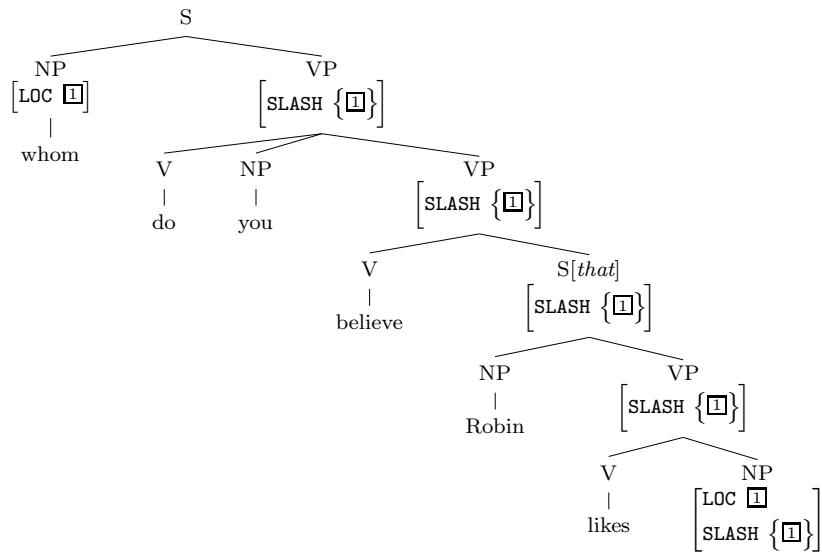

- The VALENCE PRINCIPLE ensures that a phrase can be projected from a head just in case there is exactly one sister for that head corresponding to every synsem object on the head's COMPS list.
- The HEAD FEATURE PRINCIPLE requires the HEAD specifications of a mother and its head daughter to be structure-shared (i.e., the arc from the mother category labeled HEAD and the arc from the head daughter category labeled HEAD terminate on the same node, in the graphic representation of admissible feature structures sketched earlier).

The SLASH INHERITANCE PRINCIPLE forces SLASH specifications on mothers to be shared with at least one daughter and vice versa, subject to conditions which ensure that the SLASH value at the top of the dependency is bound off at that point.
